Chad Gibbs Lesson Opportunities and Programs

Golfers are frustrated with tips from friends or family, articles from golf magazines, many lessons from indoor simulators, or endless “gems” on YouTube or Instagram. Chad’s main goal is to help you properly interpret the golf lessons that you have taken in the past or the current explosion of information that you are encountering now. Chad’s philosophy comes from playing other sports, playing D1 college golf, and over 20 years of teaching golf at a high level. Each golfer can channel his or her inner athlete and his or her former experiences to enjoy and learn this game. Dr. Mark Bull said, “In order to be a better coach, you must be a better student.” I truly enjoy playing golf and I am always working to improve my own game. Always pursuing the ‘Getting Better Every Day’, Chad successfully accomplished PGA of America Certification in teaching. Chad boosted his arsenal of instruction tools with FLIGHTSCOPE Xi Tour Radar and Hackmotion to gauge 3D Wrist Data. Why guess when you can measure?

Chad hails from Cleveland, OH and is most proud of being a husband to Durham native, Leah, and father to their two daughters.

Chad has a love of learning and an interest in improving performance and overall fun on the golf course for all students. He is an avid learner, especially in the fields of biomechanics, mindset, and strategic efficiency. He is on a personal quest to become the best teacher/coach he can be. He has attained the following certifications in: Dana Dahlquist Network, BioSwing Dynamics(Mike Adams and EA Tischler), TPI(Titleist Performance Institute) Level 2, and Forces and Motions by Sasho Mackenzie and Dr. Phil Cheetham. He has also worked with short game expert, James Ridyard. Chad continues to expand his knowledge of short game scoring. He is a Scott Cowx Certified Network Instructor. Most recently, Chad has been involved in The Catalyst School designed by popular Sports Psychologist Dr. Bhrett McCabe for coaches of all disciplines. He continually is seeking knowledge from many of the world’s best golf teacher/coaches as use their information for continual refinement of my own philosophy and methodologies. Some of my closest mentors include Duke’s own Top 100 Teacher, PGA Master Professional and Director of Golf and PGA Master Professional, Ed Ibarguen; Sports Psychologist; Dr. Bhrett McCabe; PGA Head Professional Phil Leddy; as well as another Top 100 Instructor, Joe Plecker
